Land use planning - risks and opportunities

Wednesday, 15 September 2010

1 CPD point - Legal Knowledge (Legal Practitioners)

This seminar will look at issues affecting the development or use of land in WA and will provide an overview of the process for obtaining approvals for land use (development and subdivision approvals), the appeal process and other factors commonly affecting land use (environmental constraints, heritage constraints, Contaminated Sites Act 2003 and reservation/land resumption issues).

The core focus of the seminar is to provide attendees with practical strategies to deal with each part of the process, including the importance of strategy, the need for public consultation, choice of consultants, effective use of the appeals process (mediation) and dealing with environmental constraints such as contaminated sites and state/federal referral obligations.
